

Residential Park Alt Erlaa

Why are the apartment blocks in Vienna's Alt Erlaa district still convincing after more than 40 years? The residential park, home to more than 10.000 people, was designed by Arch. Harry Glück, and built in the 1970s. It evolved from a highly criticised property to a highly praised architectural hit.

It was criticised that the residential park was a “housing machine for an anonymous mass”, but the residents defended their homes steadfastly. Highest living comfort, green terraces, sauna and swimming pool on the roof, shopping park and community with the neighbours with the greatest possible privacy are basic parameters that contribute significantly to a level of satisfaction beyond 90%.

Tour: Visit to the roof terrace with swimming pool, indoor pool, shopping park, waste recycling system with security + expansion options in the south or European project

Duration: 2 h

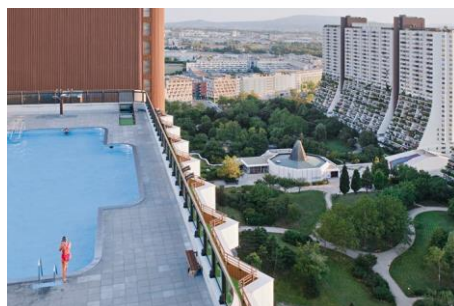

Wohnpark Alt Erlaa, Church

Church, inside

Indoor pool

Roof-top swimming pool